6:34 PM PUBLIC COMMENT - FLOOR OPEN

ANDREW BRAMLETT [City Resident]: Mr. Bramlett delivered his monthly presentation on Kennesaw history. In 1973, when Jimmy Carter was serving as Georgia's governor, his six-year-old daughter Amy joined the Little General Cloggers, which served as the city's ambassadors for decades. They were founded by Olivia Smathers of Kennesaw, and performed across the nation. Interestingly, they were the state's official bicentennial representatives in 1976. She was notably part of the group when they performed at the Governors' Mansion for the Carter Family and when they performed at the Grand Ole Opry in June 1974. During Carter's 1976 campaign, Amy occasionally performed with the Cloggers. [See Exhibit B]

When the Carters' reached the White House, they promised that the Cloggers would be able to perform there. Four months into Carter's time in office, they made good on their promise, and the Little General Cloggers (including Amy Carter) performed at the White House. They were also able to meet with Georgia's senators on the trip. This 1977 visit may be the last time Amy performed with the Cloggers, though several members of the group did attend her 12th birthday party in 1979.

SAM RUSCH [City Resident]: Mr. Rusch thanked council members Madelyn Orochena and Antonio Jones for listening to his concerns. He commented that Jones was no longer interested in holding a town hall but asked him to continue to do what is right. He suggested holding two separate town halls for Woodland Acres and Pine Mountain Acres, respectively. He commented that Pine Mountain Park a/k/a Butler Creek Park is currently open despite him hearing Jones state that the park was closed at last week's Council work session. Rusch commented that he is excited that Viars is now in support of improvements at the parks. He invited other residents from other communities to come to the Council meetings to speak their truth. He expressed approval of the Mayor's interview in the Marietta Daily Journal, and went on to negatively address council member Jonathon Bothers for statements he made at last week's work session concerning Woodland Acres Park.

MATTHEW MAYO [City Resident]: Mr. Mayo began by saying that he was encouraged by the things he heard at last week's work session. He is grateful to the Mayor and Council. He thanked city personnel from the parks department and public works for their recent efforts to clean up Woodland Acres Park. He refuted statements he heard at last week's work session regarding safety at Woodland Acres Park. According to Mayo, the park is not surrounded by woods, but by the homes of his neighbors. Mayo stated that he is proud of the Kennesaw Police Department and their ability to enforce the law at Woodland Acres Park. In closing, he mentioned the presence of the trail camera located at Woodland Acres Park and how the camera could serve as a deterrent to crime.
